BIBLE READING CHECKLIST

In accordance with Jesus' command to love God with "all our mind," the Christian life is supposed to include regular times of study and learning. The goal of such study is to have what Paul called "the mind of Christ" so that we can live the life of Christ by the empowering enablement of the Spirit of Christ.

In John 17:17 Jesus prayed that we would study our Bible. He said, "Sanctify them in the truth; your word is truth." Therefore, to increasingly grow to be more and more like Jesus, we must have regular time in God's Word. The Scriptures have much to say about the benefits of regular Bible study. To help us learn Scripture, we are told to:

- Hear God's Word (Luke 11:28; Rom. 10:17), which means, for example, that listening to sermons, lectures, and audio Bibles is very beneficial.
- Read God's Word (e.g., Rev. 1:3) as Jesus often did.
- Study God's Word (e.g., Ezra 7:10; Acts 17:11) as Jesus often did, which caused people to be amazed at his insights (Matt. 7:28–29).
- Memorize God's Word (Ps. 119:11; Prov. 22:17–19) as Jesus did, which enabled him to freely quote Scripture as needed (e.g., Matt. 4:1–11).

Because Jesus humbly entered into history as a human being, he had to grow and learn just like we do (Luke 2:52). Subsequently, when we see Jesus frequently quoting Scripture from memory throughout his life, we must infer that he spent considerable amounts of time hearing Scripture, reading Scripture, studying Scripture, and memorizing Scripture.

Like Jesus, we too will greatly benefit from ongoing learning about God from his Word. We will learn more and more about Jesus as the Holy Spirit meets with us in the pages of Scripture.
